Enjoying a good bottle of wine is one of life's little pleasures. However, it is believed that about 5% of the world's wines are corked, which leads to a less than pleasant wine-drinking experience. If you have opened a bottle of wine, smell it before drinking to determine whether or not it is corked.

CORK CLOSURES. The most common closure during the mouth-blown bottle era was the simple and highly effective cork or cork stopper. Virtually all major bottle types from the mouth-blown bottle era can be found with finishes that accepted some type of cork closure, so there is little if any cork closure related typing utility for mouth-blown bottles (empirical observations).
