Rationale. The optimization problem is to minimize $f(x)$, where x is a vector in \mathbb{R}^n , and f is a differentiable scalar function. There are no constraints on the values that x can take.. The algorithm begins at an initial estimate for the optimal value and proceeds iteratively to get a better estimate at each stage.. The search direction p_k at stage k is given by the solution of the analogue of the Newton ...

This paper gives a review of the recent developments in deep learning and unsupervised feature learning for time-series problems. While these techniques have shown promise for modeling static data, such as computer vision, applying them to time-series data is gaining increasing attention.
