What I Saw In America

Lecture 37: What I Saw in America. by Dale Ahlquist ... What I Saw in America begins as a travelogue but eventually becomes an extended reflection on what makes a nation a nation. However that is defined, America is the exception. It is a nation like no other. America, says Chesterton, is "the only nation in the world that is founded on a ...

What I saw in America is necessary reading for fans of Chesterton, but those new to Chesterton should not start with this book; it is not among his best. The free Kindle edition I downloaded in late 2015 is well formatted and does not have the problems mentioned in some of the now years-old reviews on Amazon.

What I Saw in America Quotes Showing 1-19 of 19 "I wish we could sometimes love the characters in real life as we love the characters in romances. There are a great many human souls whom we should accept more kindly, and even appreciate more clearly, if we simply thought of them as people in a story."

What I Saw in America Quotes by G.K. Chesterton

What I Saw In America was a delight, certainly the best and most interesting book I've read this year so far. Highly recommended--if you read any Chesterton, you must read this book. It's full of penetrating insight into both American psychology and British psychology.

What I Saw in America by G.K. Chesterton - Goodreads

With the publication of What I Saw in America, Chesterton joins the ranks of Alexis de Tocqueville, Charles Dickens, and Abraham Kuyper and other prominent European literary and political figures to tour America and write about it. This volume contains dozens of reflections on American hospitality, business, politics; it concludes with three prescient essays on the spirit of America, the ...

G.K. Chesterton: "What I Saw in America" The American Constitution does resemble the Spanish Inquisition in this: that it is founded on a creed. America is the only nation in the world that is founded on creed. That creed is set forth with dogmatic and even theological lucidity in the Declaration of Independence; perhaps the only piece of ...

Religion & Liberty: G.K. Chesterton: "What I Saw in America"

From The Collected Works of G.K. Chesterton, Volume 21: What I Saw in America, The Resurrection of Rome, Sidelights I have never managed to lose my old conviction that travel narrows the mind. At least a man must make a double effort of moral humility and imaginative energy to prevent it from narrowing his mind.
